Remote exam invigilation, introduced so that future members can continue their exam journey through Covid-19 disruption. As president since November 2020, I've been very lucky to meet with many members and future members, albeit online. I truly wish this could have been face-to-face and in a real space rather than a virtual one. Lockdowns and restrictions on travel made this impossible for me as it did for so many of you.

But travel restrictions are only one of the huge challenges we've all faced over the last year – and which we continue to face.

From these meetings, formal and informal, I've witnessed first-hand how so many ACCA members have stood strong in the face of the Covid-19 storm. It makes me and my fellow Council members proud to witness their resilience, talent and innovation in continuing to guide and support the businesses and organisations in which they work – and their colleagues and clients – through difficult times and tough decisions. I know this has not been easy, and that many have experienced immense personal and professional challenges in a year like no other in living memory.

What I've heard and seen during these meetings is an ACCA community that is robust and connected. It has been pleasing to see our global community taking opportunities to share their thoughts and experiences on navigating the crisis. I wholeheartedly thank our members and future members for their strength over 2020-21.

Our annual report for 2020-21 shows how ACCA has been resolute in its determination to support our members, future members and the wider community through these uncertain times, demonstrating resilience, flexibility and strength. President's message 4

My thanks and that of Council also go to Helen Brand, the Executive team and all ACCA employees. With Council, we have worked together to launch and implement a new strategy to 2025 and adapt our 2020-21 critical strategic focus in the light of the Covid-19 pandemic. Yes, it has been a challenge, but we have collaborated to assess the risks and prepare for what may lie ahead. Importantly, we have worked to ensure our support is there for our community.

We have been able to achieve this by staying close to our strategic values of innovation, integrity and inclusion, and by remaining true to our purpose to be a force for public good, and to lead the global accountancy profession by creating opportunity.

Here, I share some highlights of the support we've developed over the course of the past year, all aimed at creating value for members and future members. I am sure many of you will have seen these innovations being rolled out, and I hope they have been helpful.

I also hope you enjoy reading this integrated report. It has been a pleasure to meet so many of you over the year, a year in which the importance of having a powerful, connected and supportive community has never been so evident.

We deliver innovative, forward-thinking solutions, keeping ACCA and the profession relevant and delivering value to the world

Through a period of extraordinary demands on our members and future members, ACCA's firm focus has been on supporting them to the very best of our organisational ability.

It has been abundantly clear that in a time of such uncertainty and volatility, professional accountants have been more heavily relied upon than ever. The work undertaken by accounting and finance professionals within, and for, enterprises has taken on even greater significance. In every sector, they have been the backbone of organisational sustainability and competitiveness.

We have been acutely aware that the pandemic has created both individual and professional challenges for our ACCA community. In addition to the health effects, a significant number of our members and future members have experienced direct economic consequences as a result of Covid-19.

Our approach has therefore been two-fold – developing both the personal and the professional support that is most needed by those we serve.

Introducing a monthly rolling relationship survey of members and future members has – as intended – enabled us to move more quickly in identifying emerging needs and introducing solutions. Providing tailored support to those in specific sectors has proved to be particularly effective. With SMEs relying on advice from their professional advisers in order to stay afloat and pivot their business models, we have had a strong focus on SMP support and development. This learning, together with activity to develop a more tailored public sector members' proposition, will be built on in the coming year as we work on more segmented offerings by employment sector and other segments.

For future members, our priority has been enabling them to continue their ACCA Qualification journey. This led to us accelerating our existing strategic plans for remotely invigilated exams and rolling these out in record time where centre-based exams were not possible due to local and national lockdowns. And while every ACCA student had at least one exam sitting disrupted during the year because of the pandemic, the hard work our teams put in on new examining solutions meant that they could still make progress towards membership. We also continued to work closely with our learning partner community who have responded magnificently to the new demands the pandemic has placed on them.

Supporting and retaining our current and future membership base is of course central to ACCA's financial sustainability. Focusing on ensuring that our ACCA community sees real value in staying with us is therefore paramount. At the same time, we've challenged ourselves in terms of efficiency throughout the year and refocused activity and spend to areas where it has delivered the most value to members and future members.

6 Chief executive's strategic report

Our three areas of critical strategic focus in 2020-21 were:

1.Member and future member support and retention: our members and future members are at the heart of ACCA and it was critical that we demonstrated that we understand and support them, retaining them so we can keep delivering the trusted professional accountancy community the world needs. Every member and future member we retained helped keep ACCA financially sustainable.

2. Exam delivery and innovation: it was critical that we successfully ran as many exams in as many markets as possible: this lies at the heart of ACCA's financial sustainability as well as that of many of our partners. It was also key to the confidence, progression and retention of our future members. We had an organisation-wide focus on innovation and redeployment of resources to support the exam effort.

3. Financial sustainability: our focus on exam delivery and innovation, and member and future member support and retention has been essential to support ACCA's continuing financial sustainability. In addition to this, we introduced a range of mitigating actions to reduce our operating spend and investments as a way of offsetting the revenue impact of exams cancelled so far. We also took proactive steps to plan for a sustainable future, exploring a range of possibilities and adopting a deeply cost-conscious approach to spending.

We set four targets against our areas of critical strategic focus:

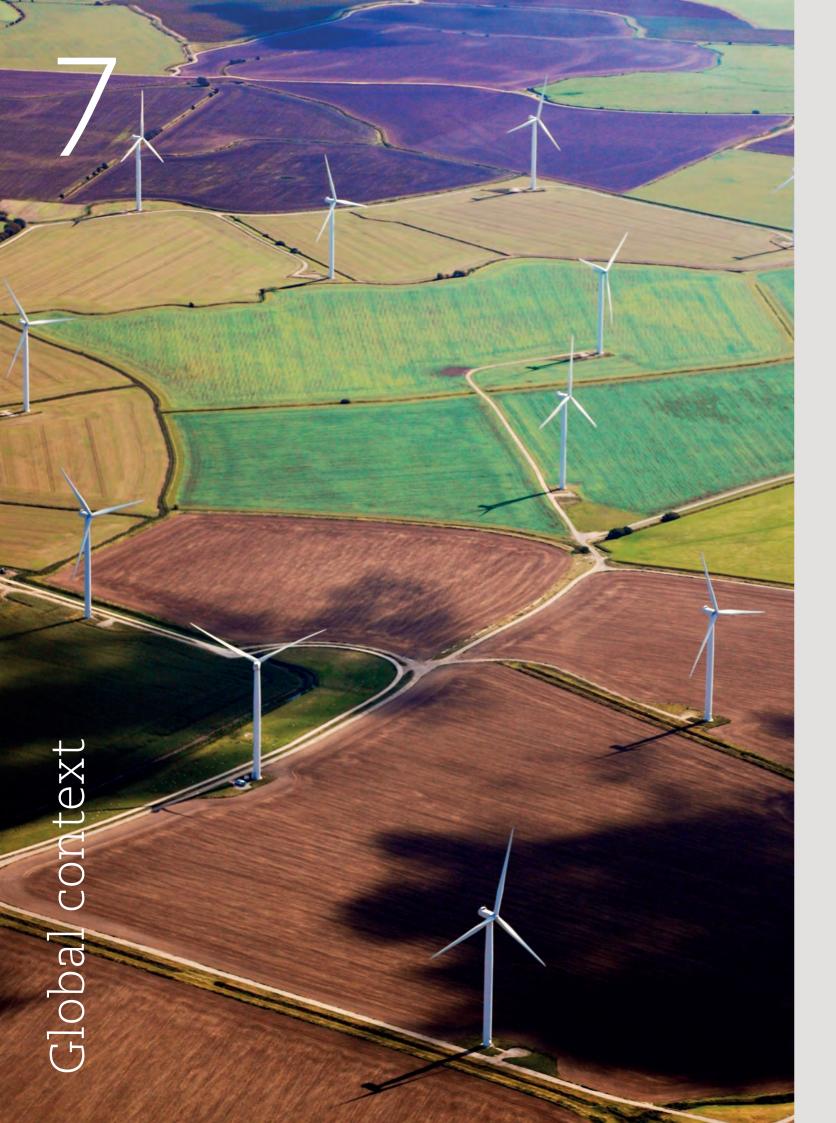

Critical strategic focus measure	2020-21 year-end target	2020-21 year-end result	Achievemen	nt
Member retention	94.7%	97.0%	Met	~
Future member retention	82.1%	83.8%	Met 🚿	\checkmark
Inclusion: % agreeing that ACCA acts with members' and future members' best interests at heart	70%	67.4%	Not met	×
Surplus/(deficit) before tax	-£8.9m	£20.3m	Met	~

Our strategy to 2025 talks about the need to change In addition to efficient delivery, we have also intensified our focus on our overall purpose and impact by continually. This has been reinforced by the global context and the level of disruption through which we and announcing our specific commitments to the UN our members are operating. It is essential therefore that Sustainable Development Goals. These commitments ACCA is optimally organised and as efficient and and the rationales for them are outlined on p41 and we'll effective as possible. On this basis, we reviewed our begin reporting against them in detail in 2021-22. In this organisational design in 2020-21 to enhance impact and way, the value we create and protect through our consolidate activities so that we can improve our agility, members and our work as an organisation will be our guiding light to 2025 and beyond. effectiveness and decision making, as detailed on p76.

"To all those across our ACCA community who have contributed to this purpose over the past 12 months, thank you – and we'll continue to be by your side and endeavour to deliver for you to the best of our ability as we move forward together."

Helen Brand OBE, Chief executive

Throughout 2020–21, ACCA has considered the global context carefully, consulting with external experts and drawing on our own market, strategic, professional and customer insight, and behavioural data to identify a series of factors that will present challenge and opportunity for ACCA in 2021–22 and beyond. Global context 7

Economic overview

In 2020, the global economy was severely impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic, with global output falling to 90% of the previous year's levels according to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). Like most organisations, this had significant impacts for ACCA. Looking ahead, the OECD anticipates a global recovery back to 2019 levels by December 2021, and our own analysis indicates that a number of macro forecasts are now broadly trending up. Despite this, a range of social restrictions persist in many ACCA markets as we enter the 2021–22 performance year.

Beyond Covid-19, we are seeing a number of significant geopolitical and economic developments. These include the new Democrat administration in the US, the publication of China's 14th five-year plan and the UK exiting the EU.

Global growth markets in which ACCA is active give sharply contrasting pictures of economic recovery. While China's economy is expected to grow by 7.9% in 2021 (compared with 1.9% growth in 2020), the pandemic has had a profoundly negative impact on India's economy. In late 2020, India fell from fifth to sixth place as a global economic superpower (behind US, China, Japan, Germany and the UK) and, in March 2021, is still in recession with a very high incidence of Covid-19 cases.

The global systemic shock brought about by the pandemic is, however, also presenting opportunity for the profession. As the world seeks to recover from the events of 2020, there is a growing movement across governments, regulators, business and society to 'build back better', driving a more sustainable approach to economic recovery.

This presents a clear opportunity for the profession and its members to advise and influence governments, regulators and business on the key role they can play in delivering sustainable recovery and returning to growth. ACCA and other professional accountancy bodies also have a critical role to play in transforming the profession in response to digital acceleration and other disrupters, upskilling those within it to seize the opportunities it presents.

Key external drivers

The key factors shaping our external environment are:

- Economic impact of the pandemic: Covid-19 is causing significant economic disruption across ACCA's markets. This continues to impact employment and create risks to member and future member retention. We recognise that we will need to both articulate and demonstrate the continuing value of a relationship with ACCA, providing members and future members with a strong sense of community and value, and ensuring that we act with their best interests at heart.
- Climate change and natural capital protection: 2020 saw record-breaking temperatures, as well as devastating wildfires and flooding, further emphasising the need to redouble efforts on climate change and protection of the planet. As business, finance and governments look ahead to how to shape both green and socially inclusive recoveries, the accountancy profession will be – in the words of Mark Carney, UN special envoy on climate and COP 26 finance adviser – 'absolutely essential' to delivering the change the world needs. The uniquely wide view that professional accountants have across the organisations that they work for and advise, coupled with their ethical and technical competencies, makes them vital to this transformation that can place impact at the heart of business decision-making. ACCA therefore has a vital role in ensuring that members and future members have the competencies to fulfil this need.
- Geopolitical environment: political tensions continue to present potential risks to ACCA's operations. Following the Covid-19 outbreak, we have seen both the protectionist and global collaboration scenarios that informed our strategy to 2025 play out in diverse ways. While the rise of a global talent force has been facilitated by increased remote working, this is juxtaposed with increased nationalism in some areas of the world. This creates a need to emphasise the value ACCA brings in offering nationally relevant leading-edge skills informed by global best practice.

- Demand for accountancy: an ongoing demand for accountants is being driven by the current emphasis within organisations on financial sustainability and the growing move towards transparent reporting. Digital acceleration is, however, creating disruption within the profession, particularly impacting lower-level roles. This creates an opportunity to demonstrate ACCA's continuing relevance and our ability to equip members and future members with the skills the marketplace needs, both now and in the future.
- Digital acceleration: across the world, we are already seeing a radical acceleration in digital adoption, with some countries and industries more ready and willing to adapt than others. While this creates challenges for ACCA in terms of greater global inequality in relation to digital maturity, it also creates the opportunity for ACCA to position itself as a digital leader both in the knowledge and skills we provide and the methods we use to deliver.
- The skills members and future members will need: Covid-19 has radically re-shaped the skills needed by employers. Our customer insights highlight shifts in what our members want to learn as well as how they want to learn, with data and technology ranking as a key technical skill to develop, correlating with our view of an accelerated digital shift. There is opportunity for ACCA in the area of continuous learning, and 97% of members now see ACCA and its partners as their first-choice source of CPD. ACCA also has a significant opportunity to capitalise on the digital acceleration and the changing needs of employers by defining and delivering a future vision for learning and assessment that delivers what the world needs. Climate change and natural capital management will also drive and accelerate the need for wider and greater non-financial reporting.
- Partnerships: ACCA is seeing all our partners (employers, education providers, governments, regulators and others) impacted by Covid-19 in different ways, with some adapting swiftly and others requiring significant support to adapt. ACCA partners in the future will remain critically important as we seek to deliver value to our community, drive our continuing growth and reinforce our relevance, attractiveness and leadership of the profession.

ACCA's response

Pre-pandemic, ACCA was already preparing for an accelerating pace of change. Detailed analysis of the disruptors of the future, coupled with scenarios work to test ACCA's strategic response, informed the development of our flexible and responsive new strategy.

The strategy to 2025 has enabled us to act swiftly and decisively from the start of the global systemic shock caused by Covid-19, notably by:

- adjusting our focus in 2020–21 to scale back some aspects of our strategic ambition but significantly accelerate others set out in our strategy to 2025. In particular, we have concentrated on introducing and rapidly expanding our online exams with remote invigilation, and accelerating our own digital readiness plans to engage with and connect the ACCA community more comprehensively than ever before.
- placing an even greater emphasis on supporting our members through building our portfolio of digital upskilling opportunities, enhancing our careers support offerings and reinforcing the vital role professional accountants play to employers.
- supporting our future members by focusing even more strongly on ensuring access to quality tuition, developing new student support tools – including those aimed at wellbeing – and enabling our education partners to transition to digital delivery.
- maximising the potential of our new approach to customer insight, we were able to draw extensively on the voice of the customer (augmenting our monthly relationship surveys with additional activity, including member and future member welfare surveys and exam experience surveys) to deliver the products, services and solutions needed. We also leveraged the collective insight of our community to create relevant, timely and world-class insights to build confidence in ACCA and the profession and lead the way forward.
- further embedding a 'customer-first' mentality across our global network, demonstrating our ability to deliver to market more swiftly than ever

• leveraging new digital capabilities which enabled the organisation to rapidly pivot to operating virtually.

In light of the continuing uncertainty caused by the global context, and in particular the Covid-19 pandemic, our core assumption is that both ACCA and its community will continue to face significant disruption during the first six months of 2021-22. With this in mind, our view is that the most appropriate and pragmatic approach to 2021-22 is to continue to deliver against a critical strategic focus, with associated measures that ensure we are targeted in our response.

In 2021-22, we will also continue to challenge how we operate, innovating to deliver our ambitions. This will enable us to move forward with purpose, seizing new opportunities and investing for the future to propel ACCA forward.

We actively manage a range of key stakeholder relationships, recognising that our success and sustainability depends on their input and involvement. As part of our strategy to 2025, we have articulated value propositions for all our stakeholders in order to maintain a strong focus on meeting their different needs.

Materiality analysis

In previous years, we've invited members of our network panels around the world to rank the 18 material issues we've identified. This year, we widened our consultation by surveying a sample of all members and future members globally on the importance of these issues. We also additionally surveyed representatives drawn from our strategic learning partners, employers and national body and government partners to provide a wider view from our ACCA community.

- 12. Diversity and inclusion within ACCA employees and within the profession

Looking overall, there is a strong focus on the factors that drive employability and progression for our members and future members in the global marketplace. The more generic functions of ACCA as a professional body, such as acting for the public good and thought leadership and public influence, are less highly rated than in prior years, arguably because the nature of the external environment is driving a strong focus on individual concerns and careers. Data from ACCA's recent survey on Gen Z also showed that personal concerns ranked significantly higher for those survey respondents than issues impacting wider society, such as climate change, and inclusivity and equality. In both cases, it is possible that these wider societal issues have been temporarily moved down the priority list, given the very real personal challenges presented by the pandemic.

Similarly, internal rankings showed the influence of the pressures ACCA has been experiencing corporately as a result of the pandemic. For ACCA's Leadership group, there is a much stronger focus on matters related to organisational sustainability, such as member growth and retention and financial sustainability. Also, as in previous years, factors linked to ACCA's wider organisational purpose, such as acting in the public good and thought leadership and public influence, are rated more highly by internal respondents.

Comparing internal and external results, we've seen a greater disparity than in recent years. For ACCA's Leadership group, the pressure on ACCA's business model and financial sustainability is leading to an internal focus on the fundamentals related to this, such as member and future member retention, growth, customer-centricity and other engines of financial sustainability. Linked to this, internally there is a greater emphasis on the concrete organisational outcomes that positive sentiment and experience among stakeholders generate. For example, members and future members rank 'member professional and career development' very highly, while the internal ranking prioritises the member retention and financial sustainability that result from the value members' perceive. Again, this may be indicative of the particular direct pressures senior ACCA employees are experiencing in their roles, compared to those ACCA employees are feeling in their working lives.

Looking forward, ACCA's areas of critical strategic focus in 2021-22 are strongly aligned to members' and future members' top priorities, focusing on member support and student progression, together with continuing to build a sustainable organisation.

	Targets are set by the Council Board for these Lead and Create outcomes and are linked to Executive remuneration.
	To achieve our Lead and Create outcomes, we will also focus on building our strategic and operational capabilities, through an underpinning Deliver outcome. We'll concentrate on building our capabilities in three key areas: partners, talent and digital. Internal measures and targets are set by the Executive team for these areas of delivery in order to drive organisational progress and they are not linked to remuneration.

Our strategic focus in 2020-21

We'll assess progress against the strategy to 2025 through seven measures, continuing to adopt a balanced scorecard approach.

However, for 2020-21 we deployed a reduced and sharpened focus, designed to help ACCA respond to the Covid-19 crisis in the most agile and sustainable way. This saw us apply a critical strategic focus to:

- exam delivery and innovation: we aimed to ensure that our exam delivery continued to evolve as the conditions become right for students to sit exams. That included continuing to roll out computer-based exams at the Strategic Professional level, bringing the market with us as we did so. And to ensure that our students could continue to progress, we accelerated our exploration of remote exam supervision.
- member and future member support and retention: our members and future members are at the heart of ACCA, and supporting them through the Covid-19 pandemic and its economic consequences was an absolute priority. In these challenging times, we recognised that we must be primed and ready to truly demonstrate the ongoing value of membership. By truly showing that we understand and support our community, we aimed to retain them, create ACCA advocates for the future, and also deliver the trusted professional accountancy community the world needs.
- financial sustainability: in evolving circumstances, we focused intently on costs and planning for a range of challenging scenarios with associated mitigations.

The Council Board approved formal targets for these areas of critical strategic focus, with the Executive team setting internal expectations across the entire balanced scorecard, which they monitored throughout the year.

Sustainable

ACCA's purpose, values and strategy to 2025 already closely align to the UN Sustainable Development Goals (UNSDGs). In December 2020, we took a significant step forward by setting out our commitments to the UNSDGs, which we will deliver by 2030 in line with the UN's decade of action.

We know we can make the most significant contribution by supporting and empowering our proud, connected community. We're also in a strong position to positively influence governments, policy makers and regulators on sustainability matters, and develop the profession in alignment with the UNSDGs. And we're making commitments as an employer and in relation to our own operations, including our commitment to becoming Net Zero by 2030.

In March 2021, we agreed our approach to embedding the commitments and using them to inform how we deliver our strategy. In Q1 of 2021–22, we'll start to build a holistic picture of existing and planned crossorganisation activity and use this to identify synergies and opportunities. As we develop, we'll use our integrated report to update our stakeholders on our progress against these commitments. In the meantime, we have agreed the following measures, aligned to our balanced scorecard where appropriate, which we'll begin reporting against from 2021–22.

We're taking a twopronged approach here. Firstly, analysing whether members believe we understand their needs because their primary role in employment is to support organisational success. Secondly, we are developing an employer brand strength score to determine the value employers place on ACCA and, by proxy, the weight given to our views when we influence them to be ethical, sustainable and successfully participate in the global economy.

Our inclusion, diversity and social mobility impact on our community is not currently measured. We know that our profession has a way to go to address inclusion, diversity, and social mobility. We will therefore focus on the release of our first ethnicity pay gap report, along with steps to address areas of concern. Externally, we will also undertake a review of our inclusion, diversity, and social mobility impact in order that we can set a measure to best drive activity.

Our performance discussion concentrates on our three areas of critical strategic focus for the year and the four targets agreed with the Council Board in relation to these. We achieved three of these four targets in 2020-21:

10 Strategic performance in 2020–21

All our key markets achieved their targets (except for mainland China, where our original pre-pandemic target was not reduced to take account of the effects of the outbreak, in anticipation of quicker and stronger recovery than proved to be the case within the performance year). While we have ended the year 2.3% above expectation, member retention nevertheless fell by 0.4% from the prior year.

At 233,019, our member full file exceeded expectation, primarily due to the stronger than expected retention we achieved. Globally, this represents year-on-year growth in membership of 2.5%. All our major markets met or exceeded expectation, except for India, where the pandemic hit especially hard in Q4 of 2020-21 and continues to have a devastating effect on the economy and society.

Globally, new member admissions of 12,504 for the year were also slightly ahead of expectation, but 1,431 behind the prior year.

Retention (83.8%) was above expectation (82.1%), if below last year (84.5%).

Among our major markets, Mainland China, Nigeria and Pakistan ended the year below expectation, but all had higher relative targets than other markets. Singapore, which had low retention performance in 2019-20, bounced back strongly in 2020-21, despite the challenges of the pandemic.

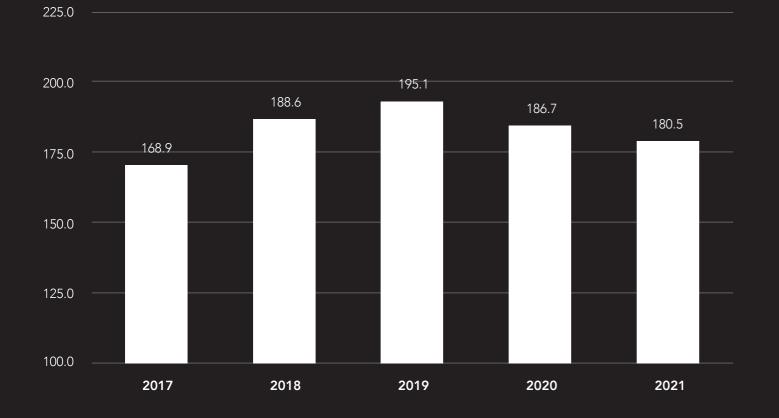

Our future member file ended better than expected, despite lower than anticipated initial registrations. However, this nevertheless represents a contraction of -1.4% on our 2019-20 future members' full file, reflecting the effects of the pandemic on recruitment and entrylevel positions. As a direct result of these economic and social restriction effects, student recruitment ended 3,663 behind expectation and 16.4% down on 2019-20 levels.

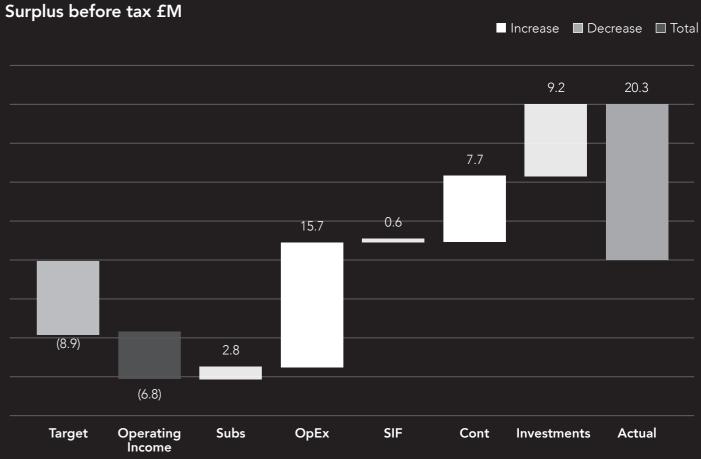

ACCA has access to strong, secure revenue streams through the recurring subscriptions from members and future members. With the unprecedented impacts from Covid-19 across the world, ACCA reacted quickly to support our members through access to hardship and support funds to maintain membership, and the provision of free and low-cost CPD and virtual networking

Operating expenditure (fM)

Operating expenditure fell to £180.5m, which represents a 3.3% decrease from prior year. ACCA revised its initial budget expectations at the start of the year as the extent of the covid pandemic became apparent. Activities and events were moved to the second half of the year as it was assumed that local control orders would prevent any planned activities from going ahead. All mandatory meetings were moved to virtual delivery methods and employees were supported to work from home through access to laptops and online collaboration tools. Due to the second wave impact, many of the planned activities and events were unable to be delivered and ACCA was able to reduce its operating expenditure for the year.

Our strategic investment this year has continued to support our strategy to 2025 and our digital ambition. We have successfully rolled out our remote examination solution and deployed this to great effect during the pandemic and our transition to a modern, cloud-based Finance, CRM and data systems continues with the first deployment scheduled for July 2021.

Strategic performance in 2020–21 10

Our pre-tax surplus of £20.3m was achieved against a budget pre-tax deficit of £8.9m. ACCA responded quickly and effectively against the impacts of Covid-19, and the rapid investment and delivery of our remote exam solution helped mitigate impacts on our revenue, while the cost management measures put in place resulted in planned contingency not being required. Our financial investments recovered strongly after the extreme volatility experienced in the prior year. The investments are held for the long term, are well diversified and the majority are held in liquid funds.

Other financial information

There are a range of transactions that arise after net operating surplus is accounted for, including tax, actuarial losses and other comprehensive income.

Our total comprehensive result for the year to March 2021 amounted to a surplus of £13.1m mainly as a result of tax of £1.8m and actuarial losses of £5.5m on the defined benefit pension schemes.

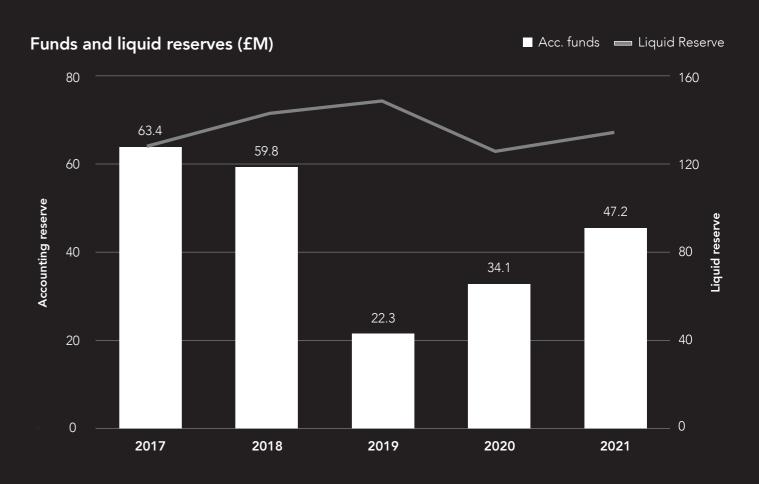

Total comprehensive income £M

■ Increase □ Decrease ■ Total

We operate defined benefit pension schemes in the UK and Ireland, both of which are closed to future accrual. These schemes are valued each year-end and actuarial gains or losses are taken to comprehensive income. This year, the actuarial losses amounted to £5.5m, which was driven by a change in the financial assumptions, e.g. a small decrease in the discount rate and increase in the inflation rate. The deficit remains consistent with prior year at £17.8m.

Council has a long-term target to build the accumulated fund to 60 days of operating expenditure. At March 2021, the Accumulated Fund represented 68 days of operating days expenditure and reflects the strong surplus generated in the year.

Council also monitors balance sheet liquidity, and has agreed that it will maintain a level of liquid reserves to cover ACCA's exposure to corporate risks that would result in a consequential loss to ACCA, which could reduce overall financial strength and create a risk that ACCA was unable to settle liabilities as they fall due. Liquid reserves are defined as the total of cash, liquid short-term and long-term investments, less any short-term borrowing. ACCA also has access to a £25m revolving credit facility supported by the UK government's CLBIL scheme but hasn't required to draw down on this facility during 2020-21.

Total assets increased from £232.1m to £246.7m, mainly as a result of the surplus for the year. At March 2021, our liquid investments including short-term cash funds was £94.6m and our cash balances were £40.9m.

More detailed financial information is available in our consolidated financial statements.

Inclusion: % agree that ACCA acts with members' and future members' best interests at heart.

Our critical strategic focus for 2020-21 pointed our attention towards a key question in our monthly relationship survey – the percentage of members and future members who agree that ACCA acts with their best interests at heart.

Data is now collected monthly from one-twelfth of members and future members, allowing us to see longterm trends more clearly. Reporting is based on 12 months of rolling data, providing the moving annual total. As this is a new sampling methodology for ACCA, we are not providing prior-year comparatives for this measure.

Our combined 'best interests' result was 67.4%, ending the year 2.6% below the target of 70%, and 0.1% below the +/- 2.5% margin set for the 2020-21 target.

This year has presented unique challenges for our community, but insight-driven actions have helped our members and future members feel supported. Members' and affiliates' perceptions have improved over the course of the year, and student perceptions remained stable overall, despite the impact of the pandemic on progression. Providing a well-connected community, understanding needs and providing value for money are the drivers we need to continue to focus on to improve our scores, while maintaining our strong brand and further improving our tailored communications.

Members

72.3% of members agree that ACCA has its members' best interests at heart. One of the main insights we gained this year is the importance of relevant communication for members, and the actions being implemented here are aimed at improving perceptions. Members' perceptions of ACCA steadily improved this year as we have focused intently on engagement and support during the global pandemic. We hope that recent activity, such as segmentation for our AB Direct communication and the launch of our Practice Connect hub, will begin to have an impact in the coming year. It will be important to build on the segmented approach we have started this year and leverage our assets to improve members' perceptions of ACCA as having their best interests at heart.

All employment sectors are beginning to benefit from this more segmented approach to our communications and resources, with all seeing at least a small increase. We saw the most significant gains in the public sector, corporate sector and small practice firms. In particular, members in small practices perceived increases in most areas we surveyed, and we saw especially large gains for our communications, resources and 'understands my needs' measures.

Students

63.1% of students agree that ACCA has its students' best interests at heart. This result has remained relatively stable since Q1, with some fluctuations around exam periods. Students expressed a range of worries relating to lockdowns. These included the impact on their wellbeing and that of their families, their ability to sit exams and their financial situation. Overall, despite some ups and downs, we managed to maintain student sentiment across the year.

To address students' challenges, we introduced remote invigilation, our InSession series, podcasts and Instagram Live sessions to further support their studies. To improve sentiment in the year ahead, we recognise that we need to consider the student experience of sitting ACCA exams and their experience of ACCA between exam sessions. We plan to use what we've learnt to further support students by capitalising on the coordination we've established between our central and market communications, continuing to consider the impacts of changes to exams, and helping students study smarter, all of which will support them in their progression with ACCA.

Affiliates

56.6% of affiliates agree that ACCA has its future members' best interests at heart. While remaining the lowest scoring group, they have also seen the most improvement over the year. Affiliates expressed concerns about the pandemic's impact on their employment and their ability to complete their practical experience requirements. Our focus on understanding the challenges affiliates face, and subsequent quick action in providing support to them – via an improved communications journey, our Covid-19 hub resources, virtual careers fairs and financial assistance for subscriptions – helped ease these concerns.

In the long-term, affiliates' interests in skills development are being addressed by our new affiliate-focused events. A working group has helped increase awareness of the challenges this group face in their journey to membership. Additional research has been undertaken to provide an in-depth understanding of barriers to progression and investigate potential solutions to support affiliates further.

We have now collected one year's worth of perception data from our relationship survey. In the coming year, we'll begin to look at year-on-year changes and use supporting research to continue targeted actions to improve our members' and future members' perceptions and the support we offer.

Performance across our balanced scorecard in 2020–21.

Although we chose to focus on defined critical strategic focus areas in 2020–21 – and will be doing the same in 2021–22 – we've nevertheless monitored performance across our entire balanced scorecard throughout the year. This is to both inform where we need to focus our attention in future years and so that we have this complete performance picture to build on when conditions return to greater normality. Early in 2020–21, we adjusted our performance expectations across the balanced scorecard to reflect the anticipated impact of the pandemic on our original projections.

Outcome	Measure	2020–21 original expectation	2020–21 Covid-adjusted expectation	2020–21 result
Vision	# of members	234,600	227,612	233,019

	Integrity: % agree that ACCA promotes the highest professional and ethical standards	80%	80%	87.8%
	Inclusion: % agree that ACCA acts with members' and future members' best interests at heart	70%	70%	67.4%
	Market share	21.2%	20.6%	21.1%
Business and society	Financial sustainability	£1.0m surplus (before tax)	£8.9m deficit (before tax)	£20.3m surplus (before tax)
Community	Net promoter score (NPS)	+32.0	+32.0	+31.4
Create	# of future members	578,800	533,105	536,815
Knowledge	% agree that ACCA understands my needs as a member/future member	60%	60%	62.1%
Value	# of exam entries	831,000	708,364	595,425
	% of students passing an exam in the year	35.7%	27.0%	29.3%
	% affiliate to member conversion	68.5%	67.2%	67.5%

Despite the challenging environment, we grew our member file by 2.5%. However, we also saw the lowest member retention levels since 2007. This highlights the importance of our continued critical strategic focus on member support.

Another notable highlight is the strong performance in our perception measures, with 83.8% of our community agreeing that we shape the accountancy profession, and 87.8% agreeing that we promote the highest of professional and ethical standards. As these are two of our defining values and so central to our brand, strong scores here are really pleasing. Similarly, we've performed well in terms of our overall net promoter score.

On market share – which we measure in relation to the member numbers of our key international competitors – we have achieved a 21.1% share, outperforming our expectation of 20.6% share. Our member growth rate, at 2.5% in 2020-21, is the highest among those bodies we measure our market share against, and represents strong performance in a volatile and challenging global environment.

We saw greater challenges in terms of our future members, where numbers dropped by 1.4% overall. We achieved 18,465 fewer recruits than the previous year, which is a 16% contraction. We also saw retention challenges across all future member groups – at 83.8%, only our 2016-17 retention performance was lower.

Despite our intensive work on offering new ways for students to continue their exam journey, we ended the year 235,575 exam entries behind our original expectation. This reflects the fact that every student had at least one exam session disrupted in the year. This disruption is reflected in student perceptions, where the ability to take exams and the exam experience is a key driver of satisfaction.

Our risks and their management

Risk management plays an integral part in helping ensure that ACCA achieves its vision to be #1 in developing the accountancy profession the world needs. We consider risk across three broad types:

- risks to the accountancy profession and the value that accountancy brings to society
- risks to (the needs of) members and future members
- risks that if left to crystallise could impact on our ability to deliver our corporate plans, strategy and our long-term sustainability.

The overall objective of our enterprise risk management (ERM) approach is to help link strategy and risks as clearly as possible so that our decision-making is transparent, both internally and externally, and based on robust evidence.

To strengthen our risk management approach, we have introduced new risk software, Protecht ERM, to provide a holistic view of organisation-wide risks and opportunities in one central repository. This process is supported by internal subject matter experts and contributions from wider stakeholders across the business, while we continue to monitor changes in our wider environment that could impact our strategy.

Eleven risks are currently held on our corporate level risk register (11 for the year ended 31 March 2020). Most of these risks are long-standing ones that are intrinsic to the achievement of our strategy and our operations as a global professional accountancy body. Following the inclusion of two new risks in 2019-20 (the risks around the evolution and ongoing attractiveness of the ACCA Qualification and the profession as a career, and those associated with our significant programme of digital transformation), an existing risk on student progression has been broadened and rephrased to recognise the importance of our affiliates in growing our future membership base.

11 Our risks and their management

Ownership and oversight

Our corporate risk register records the top cross-cutting risks and uncertainties that we believe ACCA faces. These risks, should they crystallise, have been judged to pose a significant threat to the successful delivery of our strategy and to ACCA's longer-term sustainability.

Each corporate-level risk is owned by a member of the Executive team, with the entire team reviewing all corporate-level risks every month to reflect any market, legislative and/or operational developments, adjusting mitigation and threat levels accordingly.

Our Audit Committee, comprised of Council members, exercises independent oversight of both ACCA's corporate risks and our ERM framework, providing assurance to ACCA's Council, via the Council Board, on the effectiveness of our risk management approach.

Risk appetite statement

In achieving our vision of being #1 in developing the accountancy profession the world needs, we seek opportunities to operate in every country where we believe we can positively contribute to the accountancy profession and create public value. We have an open appetite for taking well-managed risk where innovation and transformation can create change for public good, build long-term value, and create opportunities for clear improvements in our ability to achieve our vision and strategy. Trust and integrity sit at the heart of our ambition. To this end, we hold an averse appetite to risk that call into question the ethics of the profession, the value accountancy creates, or establish doubt about our own ethics as an organisation.

Following resolutions approved at the 2017 AGM, we have continued rolling out our programme of governance reforms. These innovations are designed to strengthen oversight and increase organisational agility, specifically by:

- ensuring members' interests continue to be well represented across ACCA's governance structures, with ACCA members remaining central in setting strategic direction and having oversight of the organisation
- strengthening Council's oversight in supporting and holding the Executive team to account for delivery of the strategy
- future-proofing our governance by giving us the ability to grow and flex our arrangements as ACCA evolves
- providing the agility to enable us to better respond to emerging opportunities and threats
- enhancing the level of member engagement by Council members as required of a membership organisation of ACCA's size and scale.

Reforms in 2020-21

In November 2020, we began the second phase of these reforms, which will see us increase the size of Council over three years from 36 to 45 members, equally phased as three additional seats per year. To ensure geographical diversity of representation, we have implemented a mechanism of 'caps and collars', with:

- a cap of equal to or no more than 50% of Council members coming from the same region
- a collar of at least one Council member from each ACCA region.

Election by the global membership remains the primary process for populating Council, with full transparency on the caps and collars in place as the mechanism for reserved places. Should the cap be triggered following a Council election, the election results would be used to take the lowest 'successful' candidate in the election from that region and replace with the next highest 'unsuccessful' candidate not from that region. Should the collar be triggered, this is filled through the co-option route, via recommendation from the Nominating and Governance Committee to Council.

The three additional places on Council created in 2020 were all filled through election, with the cap or collar mechanism not being triggered.

Council – responsibilities and composition

To fulfil its role as outlined, Council's main responsibilities are to:

- ensure that ACCA operates in the public interest and delivers the objectives stated in its Royal Charter
- set the overall direction of ACCA through its contribution to the design of strategy with the Executive team and its overall approval of ACCA's strategy
- elect a president, deputy president and vice president to function as the leadership of ACCA's membership
- act as ambassadors for ACCA and engage with ACCA members

Executive team reward plan

On an annual basis, the Remuneration Committee uses the corporate strategic measures and targets agreed by the Council Board to determine the reward plan for the Executive team for that year. This arrangement is structured to reward behaviour and performance that is appropriate for ACCA and focus the organisation on those elements of ACCA's Strategy which the Council Board believes require the greatest focus at a particular point in time.

Under the reward plan, members of the Executive team are eligible to receive a maximum payment of 25% of base salary per annum of which 20% is assessed against ACCA performance over the financial year and the remaining 5% is determined by personal performance. The Remuneration Committee determines the level of award up to 20% achieved against ACCA targets for all executive directors alongside the level of award against personal targets for the chief executive. In turn, the chief executive determines how much of the 5% personal performance award is allocated to each of the executive directors. The chief executive is not present when her remuneration is discussed.

This is a fair, transparent reward solution which has been created in line with ACCA's reward principles, supporting the achievement of our strategy and assessing performance over a meaningful period that reflects our focus on sustained performance, suitable for a long-term business. The basis of the award is transparent through the use of relevant and measurable performance targets, which are subject to external audit and are clearly linked to driving value.

The Remuneration Committee has complete and sole discretion to moderate (up or down – including to 0%) the level of award determined if it does not believe the level adequately reflects underlying corporate performance or for any other reason.

Executive team remuneration

The total salary (including bonuses and allowances paid) and benefits of the chief executive for the year ended 31 March 2021 was £394,074 (£417,424 for the year ended 31 March 2020). This includes a fixed non-pensionable allowance in lieu of pension benefits, introduced in August 2013 when the chief executive agreed to vary her contract of employment following the closure of the defined benefit pension scheme and an additional allowance in lieu of pension contributions.

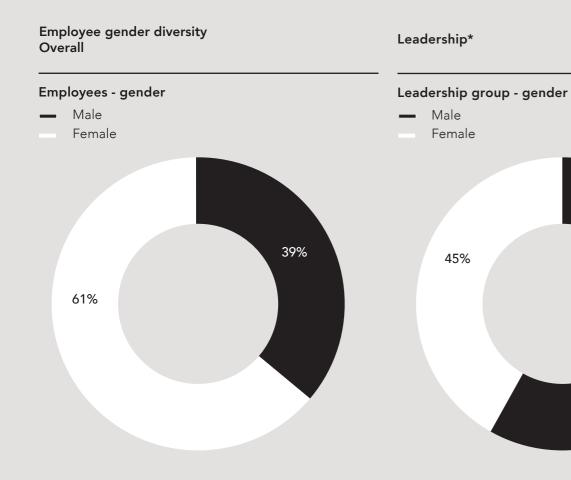

In March 2020, in light of the economic environment and uncertainty created by the Covid-19 outbreak, the chief executive recommended to the Remuneration Committee that the Executive team would forgo any performance-related remuneration in respect of 2019-20 performance and their salaries would be frozen for the 2020-21 financial year. The Committee approved these proposals.

The base salaries of the chief executive and executive directors at 31 March 2021 are shown below on a banded basis:

In both our April 2020 and October 2020 surveys, our overall engagement score met the external global benchmark of 74%:

This year, we've introduced a new, simpler and more tailored survey tool, administered by Glint, to track employee engagement. We survey ACCA's global workforce twice a year to measure engagement, assess how we're doing on our culture change journey and identify challenges and issues we need to address.

We performed well in terms of our teams understanding ACCA's strategy and how they contribute to ACCA's success. Ratings for 'My Manager' and 'My Team' were also highlights, with working relationships and teamwork coming through as real positives.

Things identified that we need to work on are helping people feel empowered, supporting people with personal growth, and continuing to support and communicate transparently through times of change and uncertainty. We have organisational and team action plans to address these focus areas and drive continuous improvement in our employee experience.

Organisational changes in 2020-21

Over the past year, we've undertaken an extensive review looking at changes we need to make to best serve our members and future members as we look ahead. A key driver of this review has been increasing our effectiveness and agility in these times of uncertainty and disruption.

To enable this, we announced some organisational changes in March 2021 designed to increase our future ability to create maximum value for our members, future members and the wider community. The key changes proposed are:

Centre of excellence for insights and analytics	In conjunction with the change to Executive director portfolios, we will establish a centre of excellence for insights and analytics, which will bring together the work that informs strategic decision-making and strategic performance, and sit within the strategy team.
Governance	We will make changes within Governance to streamline the leadership structure and bring specialisms together.
Reviewing spans and layers	We have started to review spans and layers of control across ACCA to make a shift towards a flatter organisation structure and broader roles. This has informed proposed changes across a number of directorates to improve decision-making, consolidate activities and enrich opportunities, and drive efficiency and agility.
Support teams	We have reviewed our support teams – specifically HR – to bring these in line with external benchmarks as new digital capabilities come online.
Customer service	We have reviewed our customer service structure to ensure that we're serving our customers in the most effective way.
A model and structure for Market teams	We have developed a model and structure for our Markets teams, refining spans and layers, removing the potential for duplication, driving consistency of roles across markets, and bringing together market clusters to facilitate greater cross-border working and deliver maximum effectiveness.

These changes have resulted in a total net reduction of 48 roles globally. We have also closed 58 vacancies across ACCA, which will not be filled.

UK gender and ethnicity pay gap reporting

This year we committed to publishing both our UK gender and – for the first time – our UK ethnicity pay gaps. A detailed combined report includes the results of our gender and ethnicity pay gap analysis, as well as a full narrative describing the actions we have already taken, and those we intend to take going forward, to continue to improve our pay differentials. https://www.accaglobal.com/uk/en/about-us/annualreports.html

During the year - and to support this work - we had a particular focus on diversity and inclusion, establishing three employee groups dedicated to Wellbeing, Ethnicity and LGBTQIA+, and creating a formal inclusion and diversity steering group.

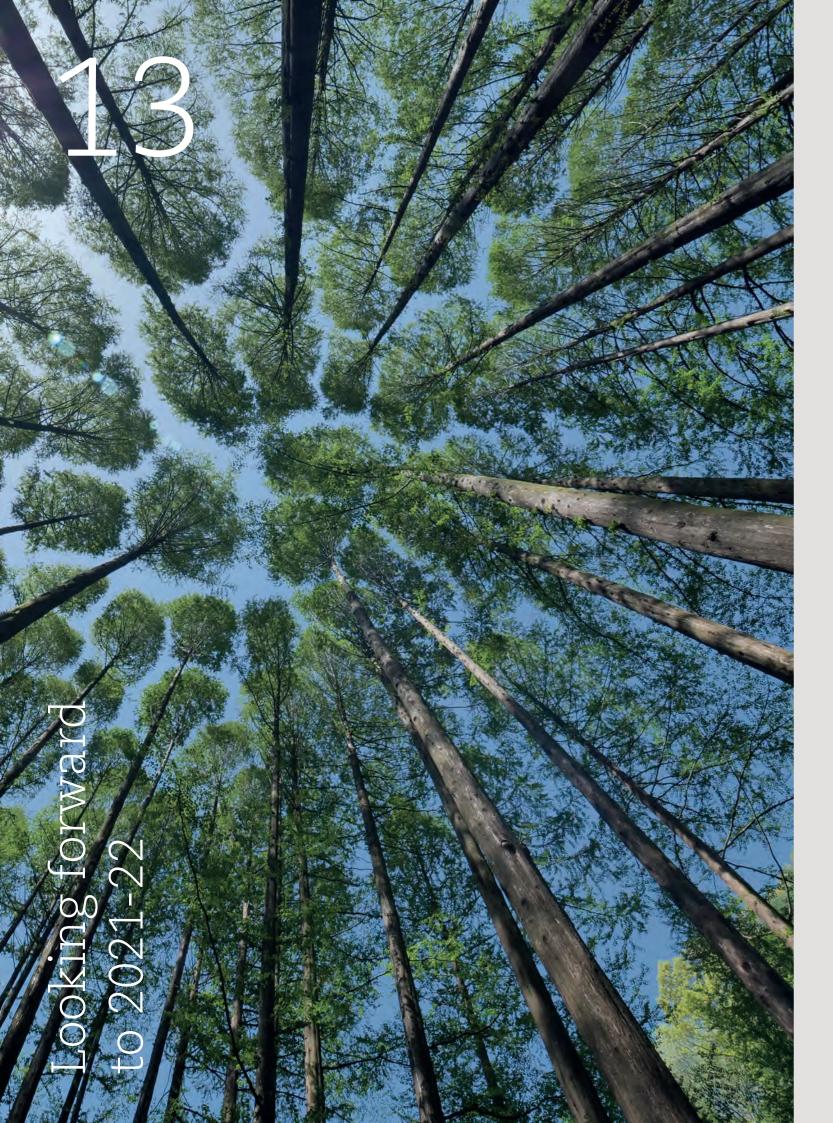

Modern Slavery Act commitment

We are committed to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business dealings and relationships. We act on this commitment by implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure that modern slavery is not taking place in our organisation or in any of our supply chains.

We expect the same high standards from our suppliers, contractors and other business partners, and as part of our contracting process we include prohibitions against the use of forced, compulsory or trafficked labour, or anyone held in slavery or servitude. We expect that our suppliers will hold their own suppliers to the same high standards.

Our Executive team has overall accountability for ensuring that our organisation complies with this policy and for monitoring its use and effectiveness, as well as the auditing of internal control systems and procedures.

Governance, leadership and people 12

Our three areas of critical strategic focus for 2021-22 are set out below:

Critical strategic focus measure

Member retention

Inclusion: % agree that ACCA acts with members' and future members' best interests at heart

Financial sustainability

Future member retention

Progression: % of students passing an exam in the year

> We look forward to delivering on all of this - on behalf of all our stakeholders, but especially our members and future members – over the next 12 months.

- Member support: we want every member to value and retain their relationship with ACCA. In 2021-22, we will support their careers and employability, and give them access to relevant information and upskilling opportunities so they can contribute to a sustainable global recovery.
- Student progression: we want every student to value and progress their journey with ACCA. In 2021-22, we'll give our students all the support they need to confidently enter and pass their exams. To enable this, we'll run exams in as many markets as possible, bolstering capacity through online exams with remote supervision.
- A sustainable organisation: in 2021-22, we will keep innovating to meet the needs of our customers and investing in our future. Transforming how we operate will strengthen our flexibility and financial resilience, delivering organisational efficiencies. This will free us up to create maximum impact and seize new opportunities as we deliver the strategy to 2025.
