Leadership in action – become the leader you were meant to be

8 November 2019

To become a great leader, one must first build the character of a leader. Leading others effectively will be determined by how well you lead yourself. Great leaders lead by example, they acknowledge work well-done and have the courage to speak out when things go wrong. They demonstrate leadership in action, and have the skills to influence, encourage, challenge and inspire.

Presenting with confidence and engaging your audience

28 November 2019

Most professionals are required to present or share information with a team from time to time. Yet it's fair to say that many professionals either dread the possibility, don't know how to prepare and simply lack the skills to present the information in an engaging way with absolute clarity. The simple truth is that you will never improve if you don't seek instruction. Come and learn from a professional speaker whose business lives or dies by her ability to present and communicate despite the size of the crowd. Learn from someone who does this for a living and take your presentation skills to the next level.

Time management – manage time to get more done

5 December 2019

Do you find that you just can't get to the bottom of your to-do-list. Do you know what tasks to focus on to get the best results? Are you left at the end of the day with more to do than started with? Could you benefit from using your time more wisely? Join us on this course and learn how to manage time to increase your productivity and reduce your stress levels.

How to thrive through challenge and change

6 December 2019

Change is inevitable; but even if you can see the change coming our own personal experiences of the change can be very different to someone else. How do you make sure that you deal with challenges and change in the best way possible? This is your opportunity to take a step back and gain insights into how you can deal with daily pressures of challenge and change in the best possible way.
